LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1867.

Curious Country Honse of Robert Houdin, the French Prestidigitateur-Automatic Gates and Doors-How His Servants are Called-Domestic Uses of writer in the Journal des Debats gives an entertaining account of a recenvisit to the country house of Robert Hon-din, the famous "prestidigitateur." Hon-din seems to have shown excellent taste in the selection of a site. His residence is on the left hank of the Loire, opposite the town of Blois.

Novel application of electricity and vaous ingenious devices have been intro-uced by M. Hondin. We translate some interesting passages: AN AUTOMATIC DOOR.

An iron gateway for carriages gives a cess to a long, winding avenue bordered with trees which make an arbor of it; a little door at the left is devoted to the use

f pedestrians. This door is ornamented with a gilded knocker, above which is in with a glided knocker, above which is inscribed the name of the proprietor, and below that of the property, which is the old priory of the cathedral of Blois. You see also the word "knock." The knocker, when lifted, establishes an electric communication, which, by means of a wire ike that of the telegraph, sounds a grea clock bell in the house several hundred clock bell in the house several hundred yards distant. The servant, thus notified of an arrival, is not obliged to trudge this distance; he only switches a cord, which opens the door. This same string, still by opens the door. This same string, said by means of electricity, turns the plate on the door, and substitutes the word "eater for the word "knock." The visitor pushes the door half open: if opened further it sounds a small bell, which rings louder the further the door is pushed back, so the further the door is pushed back, so that the inmates not only know that the risitor entered, but also can tell pretty accurately whether he is alone or accompa-nied by others for a single caller does plenty of time to prepare for the reception of their visitors while they are coming up the long shaded avenue of which we have spoken. Besides, the master of the house can see those who enter, distinguish them count them, reconneitre them. I should add, to end the description of this first mechanism, that, when the little door shuts, the word "knock" agaia appears on the plate, and as the servant accomplishes some one has knocked, the family ways sure that the door has not been left open by any carelessness; morcover, a little placard in the vestibule of the house, and controlled by the same electric agent, bears the word "gates open" or "gates shut," as they are in the one or the other condition—a contrivance which remedies any negligence on the part of the servants.

not commonly trouble himself to push the

HOW CARRIAGES ARE RECEIVED. If it is a carriage which presents itself t the gate, the coachman opens the little door just described, enters, opens great gate which communicates with ouse by several electric wires which set the great bell ringing, and the rest passes off in the same way as in the case of callers on foot. If the coachman has not closed the gate behind him the little table in the vestibule indicates it, and they know in the house that the gate has beer

Near the outside door is placed, as is the custom at present, a box for papers and letters: the external opening of this ox is closed by a little cover which can lifted at pleasure; when lifted. play, and sounds a particular bell. "Good." says Mr. Robert Hondin, "there are my papers and letters," and you know that in the country this moment is looked for with some impatience. "Jean, go and up in the Senate, and met with singular opposition. Senator Harrison was quite vehement in his opposition as was the Senator from Bracken. Senator Grainger ably supported the advantage of the senator Grainger and the senator Grainger or negligence here, for the bell has tinkled three times since the ring produced by the package of papers. But does it not happen that the passerslow the name of Robert Houdin, so un versally known by his reputation as quasi-sorecter? And do they not often make the inmates pull the cord uselessly? Let us now pene-trate into the domain of Mr. Robert Hou-

The avenue which leads to his house is cut between two little hills crowned with trees. When you are walking in this little park you cannot pass from one hill to another without descending into this avenue and climbing up the chargide. This nuc and climbing up the other side. This would be a fatigning exercise. To remedy this two wire cables have been stretched from hill to hill. To these cables are sustained to the control of the cables are sustained to the cables are cables are sustained to the cables are sustained pended two chariots, rolling on pulleys-one to go, the other to return. You sit down on the first: the weight of your body moves it, and you cross the ism, put in motion by counterposies. Af-ter having visited this part of the you can return to the first by the same process, and these little voyages, which recall the Russian mountains, are very

We come to the house of the gardener. M. Robert Hondin wishes that his people should be at their work bright and early: to secure this he has put up in Antoine s bed-room an alarm clock, which sounds at a fixed hour by means of an electric clock; he has taken care to place this alarm, not near the bed-room of his gardener, but at other side of the room; now the electric ub does not stop until you unlock the conducting wire: so Antoine is obliged to get up in order to deliver himself from the deafening noise, and, once up he will not e likely to go back to bed. The battle is Beyond the lodge of the gardener is the t-house, in which are kept during the winter the orange and other trees which are sensitive to cold; but, if it is necessary to keep these from the frost, it is quite as hurtful these from the frost, it is quite as nurting to expose them to excessive heat; it is, therefore, necessary to have the means of verifying the temperatare of the greenhouse and, above all, of assuring one's self during the night that the gardening has not been neglected. Nothing easier to M. Robert Hondin. A metallic thermometer, composed of two different plates, which dilate nnequally when beated, at a certain degree of heat or of cold pushes a little valve, which puts it in communication with an electric apparatus, the current, once established, sounds a bell which notifies the master of the house.

You will conjecture that the subject of clocks has not been neglected by a man who has accomplished wonders in that kind of mechanism. M. Robert Houdin has given to his native town—Blois—an to expose them to excessive heat; i

In some parts of the districts where it is tolerably open, the sportsmen used to follow the game on were steady enough to stand fire from their backs. After the shot they quickly remounted and galloped off. In fact, some way of conducting the sport is described.
On one occasion my triend had turned up two full grown lions, and, was following them on the plain. He managed to get within range, and as his horse would not stand quiet enough for him to fire off his back, jumped off and threw the bridle over his conductive to the conduction.

He fired the second barrel, and then had the horror of seeing the wo i, and legs, and roaring tremendously this, and legs, and roating them and there was no time to load. His tirst impulse was naturally to boltas hard as he could, and accordingly away he stumped for the nearest tree. But long before he could reach it the roars came closer and closer behind him, and he felt that he had not Revolutionary Fathers.

I cannot, gentlemen, anticipate what of selfpreservation, but the lion was fast closing with him. What could he do? There was no time to be lost. In a few more bounds his head might be crushed in by the blow of a paw, or his mangled limbs be quivering in the animal's relent-less jaws. It suddenly occurred to him to try and startle the beast by some unusual combination of form and sounds. His resolve was immediately taken and acted upon without delay. Stopping short sud-denly in his race, with his back still to-ward the lion, now drawing very close, he ducked his head and body until he looked at it reversedly from between his legs, and in that position made some of the most appalling yells, and at the same time gesticulated wildly with his arms

This was a metamorphosis for which the avage beast was quite unprepared. Just before there had been a runaway man legging it as hard as he could go in front Jout now there was a fearful, shapeless crea-ture, stationary and unyielding, and howling in the most awful way, quite beyond all lion experience. The brute was staggered, and hesitated in his headloag career; then pulled up and looked, advanced a step, and looked more closely; heard a frantic yell of extra power—the last despairing effort of the hinter; turned, and with lowered tail trutted off to join his with lowered tail trotted off to join companious, now disappearing in the dis-

Weather Wisdom.

Changes of weather may be foreseen often by loag intervals, by other aids far more efficacious than those of the moon or of weather cycles. A moon's changes rivalry even may be established with the meteorologists of Whitehall. The appa ratus required may, with the exception of a barometer and the clouds, be all found in the animal kingdom, a careful observa-tion of the habits of some of the denizens of which is the sure road to successful weather wisdom. There seems to be a sensibility to atmospheric change in the slower orders of creation which answers them as instincts, and directly gives them information which man only arrives at by the loager road of reason. The scent of the hound is an instance of a delicate sense which we cannot form an idea of, though t way help us to conceive the possibilit of pigs seeing the wind or of horses and cattle "snifflnig a distant storm." A sow carrying straw in her mouth to make her bed is as sure an indication of coming fon and in that position commences to west her face, it is said the same event is pre-dicted. It is as true as the skies as of do-mestic affairs, that when the hen crows a change for the worse is at hand, and, as to the lord of the ponltry-yard, we have th

Hence the saying:

"When you see the governer flying. Be sare the air is drying."

An instance is on record of a French of ficer, confined in a prison at Utrecht dur-ing the wars of the French Revolution having so closely and accurately observe sole companions, that he was able, by their movements, to foretell a first four-teen days before it came, and thereby turn the certain defeat of the Frencharmy into a glorious victory. But snails are their colors change on the approach of rain, and some species indicate rain so much as ten days before by tubercles, which appear on their bodies, and seem intended for the purpose of imbibing the approaching moisture. As a general rule these creatures, according to their habits, two or three days before rain, may be seen climbing the trunks of trees, or seek-ing shelter under leaves, or making their way to open places. We thus see that by a careful assortment of spiders, snails, frogs, and leeches, and a few domestic animals, combined with a good buremeter. animals, combined with a good barometer birds, any person may easily become weather prophet of no mean practic wisdom. But how shall we account the more distant foresight of weath which some animals have? Four of these sold for $225. This lot, added on to the number of the day previous, leaves the market about as full as when last reported. There have been no arrivals rom above for the last twenty-four hours."

CHICAGO GETTING SCARED,-The Chicago Times warns its home readers that their city has reached, if it has not passed, the climax of prosperity. It describes, at Louis has been ahead of Chicago in securing the trade of Colorado and the Western frontier, and closes by giving the following piece of wholesome advice:

Chicago has many wonderful advan-tages as to location; but there is a limit to the benefits arising from our situation. We are safe in assuring our capitulists that, in less than five years, it will be ound that the advantages of our position will have been exhausted, and that we shall have fallen behind in our race with less favored but more enterprising rivals. The time is already about at an end when we can base prosperity upon questionable transactions in grain, and in al-lowing trade to find its way hither in place of going in search of it.

MOLLIE TRUSSBLE.

From the Chicago Times, Feb. 18.]

Contradiction of Incorrect Reports-Letter to a Lady Friend Her Dertermination to Lead a Life of Rectifude-Her Departure from the City.

The many false and unfeeling rumors oncerning the unfortunate Mollie Trus-ell, which have been spread abroad arough several newspapers of this city, are hitherto called forth no response oun her, or from any of the Indies who have interested themselves in her case. Nor was the following letter, which she has written to one of those ladies, intend and for publication by the writer. The lady, however, to whom it was addressed, has kindly furnished it for publication, believing that some contradiction of those reports was not merely proper, but an act of justice both to Mollie Trussell, and to Lerself and her associates. Still, the publication would not probably have been permitted, were it not that before it perusal by the readers of The Timesthis worning, the writer will be far on her way to the east. She left Chicago last evening, with the intention of spending the next two years in a Catholic institution in the State of New York. The letter shows that, even in her outcast situation, Mo Tinssell has not been insensible to the cynical and malicious reports of certain journals of the city. It was addressed to a Christian lady of the city in reply to one written by the latter a short time since. It may not be amiss to state that ever since the region of his parallel willing. ever since the receipt of her pardon, Mollie Trussell has been visited and encouraged by several of the most intelligent and re-spectable ladies of the city. These ladies have watched her course with intense in-terest, and have no doubt of her full in-tention to lead a different life. The following is a copy of the letter

My Dean Lady Friend-Yours of Fe 2d was duly received, and would have been answered sooner, but, owing to the difficult task for me to write or to get any one to do it for me, it was postponed. My sind lady, I cannot but sympathize with you in your recent affliction, and if I could you in your recent affection, and if fould use a pen like yourself, your letter would not have remained so long unanswered; but the receipt of it, although bringing such unpleasant news, gave me great consolation, and couriers. colation and comfort. While you have been so sorely bereaved, I, a poor sinner, un permitted to live, when my wish is to be laid in the silent grave; but it is or-dered otherwise, and I suppose to give me more time for reflection on the past, and a contemplation of the course for my future life, in order that I may be better prepared when that change comes. Were I worthy to call on you, it would indeed be gratifying: but from the sarcastic, unfeelng, and uncharitable, besides false, state tents which the public prints appear to clight in in spreading before their readrs, it makes me sad for fear they may in ence many of those kind friends, like urself, to imagine that I nm. notwith-inding the ordeal I have passed, nnrthy of their friendship. Could you that dear lady, Mrs. White, she would inform you that every line they have sent forth to the world is false, and that since my return I have been stopping at -, retired from the world and its alluring follies, and seeking, in my own seclusion to gain that peace of mind which will be to gain that peace of mind which will bet-ter prepare me for earrying out the wishes of my poor henrt, sinful as it may have been. God grantthat I may be sustained in my firm resolves, and be enabled to bear mp under all the eastigations my enemies may seek to cast upon me, in order to still make me a hy-word and reproach in this community. You offer me, kind haly, a home. An onteast like myself to ac-cept such an offer, when I feel myself so unworthy, is out of place, however much I may at heart earnestly desire the kind sympathy of friends who, in this trying hour of my life, have done so much for me. I have just returned trom South Bend, from a visit to my hoy, and feel more comforted in his prosperous career. and feel that there is yet something on this earth worth living for. I care not what the world says of me, so long as I live a virtuous life, and look only to a crucified Redeemer for His support in seeping me in the path of recitude, which, by his blessing, I shall nlways try to pur-sue. Having made these firm resolves. with fervent prayers for divine assistance, I feel that I shall be strengthened and supported. If I can only live long enough to pray, and repent for that soul that I sent out of the world so unprepared, and to pray also for those who have shown mesuch sympaty and kindness. It is through them only that I am once more at liberty, and my future life-must not and shall not be clouded by any act of mine that will tend to lessen their sympathy and kindn They have done much, indeed, all, and they will be rewarded for such kind acts in the future, if not in this life. Agreed to.

The bill amendatory to the act to provide for the safety of the lives of passengers on board of steam vessels, to regulate the salaries of steamboat inspectors, and for other purposes, was passed. The clerk of the House announced the ction of the House on the hill to provide more efficient government for the insurctionary States.

The bill to restore Lieutenant-Com-nander S. L. Breze, of the navy, to the ctive list passed. Mr. Williams moved that the Senate inist on the amendments to the reconstruc-ion bill, and agreed to the conference called for by the House. Quite a lengthy Mr. Conness thought this too important bill to entrust it to the Conference Comonses was a fundamental one. He ould object to any compromise Committee. If the report was not satis-actory it could be voted down. Mr. Sumner advocated the committee s the only way of accomplishing the deumstances, vote for a Committee of Conereuce, but it was known that the opposi-on to the Senate amendment in this case as not to be reconciled without surrenering the principles upon which the bill was framed. The opposition to the bill came from two extreme views in the Honse-one asserting that the rebel States were now entitled to representation, and he other believing the terms of the bill oo liberal. He did not see how a Conference Committee could settle this differnce, and thought it best for the Senate to usist still further in its amendments, and rive the llouse another opportunity to ental and fundamental. He would not gree to Mr. Blaine's amendment. Mr. Fessenden said the bill failed in the is necessary to equalize more fully such aines amendment, as redrawn, was ought not to afford sufficient protection

Mr. Howard sail that as Mr. Fessenden and not stated his objection to Mr. Blaine's mendment while the bill was under disussion in the Senate, he (Howard) was unwilling to trust this important subject to the Committee Committ the Committee on Conference. Such acasure ought to be settled by the two ouses in open ression.

Mr. Fesseuden said that in withdrawing his objections to Mr. Blaine's amendment he did so with the strict understanding that there would be no debate on the Re-ublican side.

Mr. Howard said it was not true that he as opposed to Mr. Blaine's amendment s it was incorporated in Mr. Sherman's ill. He voted for it, while Mr. Fessenden as quietly asleep in his lodgings paired fit thus avoiding it.

Mr. Fessender, problemed that

Mr. Fessenden explained that he was absent when the vote was taken. He had paired off, and being sick had retired from the chamber by the advice of friends. The gentlemen from Michigan must not lecture him (Mr. Fessendeu) for being out of the way and glorify himself for staying here. Mr. Howard replied that he, not being aware of the Senator's sickness, remained in his seat heremsels was well and record his seat because he was well, and voted the measure. This was the extent of

Wade believed this too grave a mater to leave at this stage of the session to he Committee of Conference. He did not like some things said by Mr. Fessenthat he was present while the debate ot on; that there were failures in it ectionable to him, yet he would not exis opposition to it. He (Fesser

Mr. Trumbull did not regard the bill as came from the Honse, called the milthe tame from the House, called the mil-tinry bill, of the slightest importance. He thought that something else besides this ought to be incorporated in the new bill. He therefore favored the Blaine amendment. He thought it contained everything required as guarantees. He was opposed to a Conference Committee. He also alluded to the Freedmen's Rualluded to the Freedmen's Bunu. Independent and National Resolves of the Irlsh Republicans.

Dentax, Jan. 25, 1567. To All Whom it May Concern:

PORTLAND, Feb. 12.

In the present momentous crisis of Irish nationality, when in the eyes of the world the question of Ireland's existence or total extinction as an independent nation seems trembling in the balance, we, the representatives of the republican party in Ireland, deem it our duty to my known to all true sympathizers with our dewn-trodden race and oppressed nationality, that we have taken our linal stand on the high vantage ground of self-reliance; that, taught by years of bitter ex-perience, we no longer base our nopes of success upon the co-operation of our countrymen in America; and that we re pudiate, once and torever the degrading doctrine that Irish liberty and Irish rights are not to be won without assistance from foreign and external sources. No longer shall we be dominated by the autocratic dicta of a single will; no longer shall the destinies of our race hang upon the strength or weakness of a single mind. Our lost opportunities and blighted hopes proclaim trumpet-tongued that the time for such fendal administration of our affairs is post.

From a deep conviction of this truth we, the republican representatives of Ire-land, formed, on the lith inst, a Directory. with supreme control of the organization. On the 21th inst. we became aware of the action of our countrymen in America in the deposition of Mr. Stephens and the lection of General Gleeson to the vacant head centership. While viewing these matters with indifference and as entirely While viewing these nnconnected with ourselves, we still trust that we retain the sympathy of our expatriated countrymen, wherever they are to be found. But not to them alone do we appeal for sympathy: when our struggle for independence shall be inaugurated the world shall behold the champions of liberty of every race and every nationality rallying round our banner of rights. Then and not till then, shall the soldier and the coward forced to wallow in the mire of his owninfamy.

Ere long shall the world behold the spectacle of a nation uprising in its might, strong in its self-confidence and conscious strong in its self-connidence and conscious right, to win its way to its legitimate place among the peoples of the earth, or set mid a halo of blood and glory which shall serve as a lone-star of liberty to future ages and succeeding generations.

Remembering always that Fortune fafors the brave and enterprising, however to commit ourselves to energetiand independent action, as the only course now befitting brave and honorable men, sedulously eschewing for the future ll unnecessary exposure of our plans by blie displays of our patriotism Such being the sentiments which actuate us, we shall enter fearlessly upon the course we have marked out—and may God defend the right.

Whiteside, dentist, of this city, or the particulars of a most singular and appalling catastrophe that occurred yes terday morning in the town of Columbus, about forty miles south of this city, on the Madison railroad. About eight o'clock the attention of some citizens on the stree was attracted to the liquor shop of a Ger man by the name of Andrew Nolle, by slight smoke issuing from it. He had long been known to be a very intemperate man, and recently, it was supposed in consequence of his wife leaving him and applying for a divorce on account of his confirmed drunkenness, more constantly and beastly drunk than usual. On enter dry salted 14@15c; fint 16@17c.

At 15c clothes were still burning. His lips had been entirely burned away, leaving a ghastly hole, in which his tongue was seen burned the sales of prime as were still burning. His lips had been entirely burned away, leaving a ghastly hole, in which his tongue was seen burned to the sales of to crisp, as was the inside of his mout and his throat. His nose also was burned as if by fire coming out of the nostrils. The remainder of the body was scorched where the burning clothes had touched, but showed no other indication of fire. The hands were drawn up to the mouth as if to close it, or shut off some dreaded thing from it. There was no fire in the room that Dr. Whiteside could see, and certainly none near the horrible corpse.

A revolver was found bestue in. Our air ingrates.

Provisions and Lard-Market easier. Sales of boths mess pork at $20.70, 120 do at $21, 20 do prime at $10. Bulk meats quitet, with not transactions reported; shoulders are held at $80.00, packed. In tots, sides at $120, packed; also sales of $6 casks. In other person, without detection, or some mark or other that would indicate where the fire came from, and how it was used. But, if it could have been thus applied, it is impossible to believe that it was, for there could be no motive to burn a deadman, especially about the mouth and nose. The same fact of the singular characte and locality of the hurning, involving onlite aft passages, precludes all idea of death by violence. No murderer or robber would try to kill a man by setting him on fire, or if he should, he would not, and could not, put fire to his mouth and nose only. No hypothesis of murder seems to be tenable, and that of suicide is even more absurd. We must therefore conclude that the death was caused by spontoneous combustion, or by the burning of inflammable gases, generated in the whisky-rotted carcass, and escaping by the lungs and air passages. This might have been caused by an attempt to light a cigar with a match or other flame. There are several authenticated cases of snoothan are several authenticated cases of spont are several authenticated cases of sponta-neous combustion on record, as our physi-cians know—Dickens has cited a few in justification of the incident which forms so frightful a scene of his "Bleak House"— but we question if a more clearly marked case than this at Columbus has ever occurred. We may note that he had on a soldier's blouse, a flannel under-shirt and a cotton over-shirt, and that his hair was not burned. was not burned.
